The Peter J. Eloranta Fellowships are awarded to MIT undergraduates (including seniors planning to graduate in June) for interesting and novel research of student-initiated ideas developed outside the normal curriculum. Each individual fellowship is $6,000 for summer research. The selection committee looks for WOW quality: Well-written, Original, and Workable. The stipend may be used to cover living expenses, travel, or materials and services costs.
