

BENJAMIN SIEGEL PRIZE

The Benjamin Siegel Prize of $2500 is offered to the MIT Student submitting the best written work on issues in science, technology, and society. The Prize is open to undergraduate and graduate students from any school or department of the Institute.

The Siegel prize was established in 1990 by family and friends of the late Benjamin Siegel (S.B. 1938, Ph.D.)

Submission requirements

Please submit one electronic (PDF) copy of a single-authored work of no more than 50 pages written within the last two academic years.

Include one cover page with author identification, contact information, year, and program of study.

Do not include any identifiers within the body of the work.

email submissions to:
gusz@mit.edu

DEADLINE:
April 19, 2016

For more information:
Gus Zahariadis | gusz@mit.edu
617.253.3452

MIT
Program in Science Technology & Society

web.mit.edu/sts | facebook.com/mitpsts | @mitpsts