

Entry-level Analyst Opportunities at The Dedham Group

The Dedham Group is a boutique strategy consulting firm providing advisory services to biotech and pharmaceutical companies. The Analyst position at 'TDG' is a rare and exciting opportunity for junior team members who are interested in a career in the Life Sciences industry and strategy consulting. Unlike most consulting companies which are generalists, TDG specializes in Oncology and Specialty Therapeutics. TDG works on specific brand commercialization issues to overarching company-wide portfolio planning as well. Analysts will work on projects addressing the reimbursement, pricing, demand creation, health policy, health economics and market strategy needs of clients.

Analysts will support all levels of consulting projects and business development work including:

- Market research (primary and secondary research)
- Stakeholder interviews
- Data analysis
- Report and presentation development
- Strategy assessment and commercial insight
- Presentations to clients

Desired Skills and Experience

- B.S. or advanced science degree from a top-tier university in a quantitative or science related field with a life science focus
- 0-2 years of experience in consulting or related fields within the healthcare industry
- Entrepreneurial and collaborative attitude
- Excellent time and project management skills
- Superior skills in using MS Office (particularly PowerPoint and Excel)
- Strong communication and analytical skills

To apply, please visit <http://dedhamgroup.com/careers>

Please note, all candidates must possess work authorization which does not (and will not in the future) require work sponsorship by an employer.