Next Generation of International Security Specialists

CALL FOR APPLICATIONS

CISAC

is an interdisciplinary community of scholars dedicated to producing policy-relevant research on international security. It is devoted to teaching and training the next generation of security specialists to influence policymaking in international security and to foster a more informed public discussion.

CISAC welcomes applicants from academia (predoctoral or postdoctoral scholars) and mid-career professionals in law, military, government, science, public policy, or international organizations.

Apply at cisac.fsi.stanford.edu/content/applying-cisac-fellowship.

Stanford | CISAC Center for International Security and Cooperation

Fellowship Program

Fellowship Categories

Social Sciences or Humanities International Security Fellowship

Natural Sciences or Engineering International Security Fellowship

Cybersecurity and International Security Fellowship

Nuclear Security Fellowships
Sponsored by Stanton and MacArthur Foundations

Application Deadline: January 15, 2019
Contact: Marisa MacAskill, mmacaskill@stanford.edu