

Post-doctoral Positions in Logistics & Supply Chain Management MIT Global SCALE Network

MIT's Supply Chain and Logistics Excellence (SCALE) Network of research and education centers has multiple post-doctoral positions to support research activities in North America, Europe, Asia and Latin America in the area of transportation, logistics and supply chain management.

Responsibilities

Post Doctoral Associates are responsible for conducting independent research, assisting and taking leadership in writing manuscripts, and meeting with project sponsors. Candidates are also expected to support educational activities and publish in top international journals. Preference will be given to those with both methodological and practical work experience.

Post-doctoral appointments will be given for one or two years, starting as early as January 2014.

Qualifications

Candidates should possess:

- A PhD in supply chain management, transportation, logistics, operations management, information systems, engineering, economics, business, or a related discipline;
- Ability and desire to publish in top academic journals;
- Evidence of the ability to develop and deliver lectures and class material at the graduate level (both Masters and Doctoral);
- Experience with industry, preferred.

Application

To apply, please submit a letter of interest, curriculum vita emphasizing research and teaching capability along with industry experience, and contact information for references to:
