Call for Papers: “Doing the Right Thing – Ethical Issues in Logistics and Supply Chain”

Deadline: 1st April 2016

The 21st Annual Conference of The Chartered Institute of Logistics & Transport, Logistics Research Network (LRN), will take place from the 7th to 9th September 2016 at the University of Hull (UK) which is celebrating 10 years of logistics teaching and research and is a principal partner for UK City of Culture 2017. The LRN Conference welcomes researchers and practitioners from diverse logistics and supply chain areas, and in all sectors, to publish their research work and industrial case studies. In particular, this conference's theme focuses on work involving ethical issues in relation to supply chain management and logistics operations. It is hoped for this conference to demonstrate the current, promising research work within the theme in terms of its trends, challenges, and opportunities, so as to discover and explore new research directions for the research community and the practitioners. The topics covered (but not limited to) are listed below.

Papers with a strategic focus, theoretical analysis or operational research are welcome. This is to include both complete work and on-going research (especially PhD projects). Presentations of results from industrial work and “Insights from Industry” provided by practitioners are highly desirable.

Authors wishing to prepare a paper for the conference are invited to submit a [strictly no more than] 500-word abstract for consideration by the programme committee.

Abstracts should be structured to include the following:

TITLE OF PAPER

Authors (including affiliation and e-mail)

Abstract

Purpose: Explain the purpose of your research

Research Approach: Explain the research approach; e.g. exploratory, theory, empirical, qualitative, quantitative

Findings and Originality: Explain your key findings here. If this is work in progress, explain any intermediate findings

Research Impact: Describe the impact from a research point of view.

Practical Impact: Describe the managerial/policy implications of your research.

Abstracts must be submitted online at: <https://easychair.org/conferences/?conf=lrn2016> and received by Friday 1 April 2016.

When you access the EasyChair site you will need to register, if you are not already registered, before you can access the submission page. Registration is free. Once logged on, please follow the on-screen prompts, and click on the “New Submission” tab to start the process. Make sure to read the Submission Instructions before continuing.

All authors will be informed by Tuesday 3 May 2016 whether their paper has been accepted. The email will consist of information for final paper preparation and further instructions for registration.

Final papers need to be received by Friday 10 June 2016.

Further details about the conference can be found at www.lrn2016.org.uk. We look forward to welcoming you all to this conference in Hull.
