

Assistant/Associate/Full
Professor of Supply Chain Management

Department of Supply Chain Management
Sam M. Walton College of Business
University of Arkansas

The Department of Supply Chain Management in the Sam M. Walton College of Business at the University of Arkansas invites applications and nominations for a tenure-track position in Supply Chain Management at the Assistant, Associate or Full level, beginning fall 2019. The desired candidate is expected to publish research in top-tier, business journals that contributes to the body of literature related to the intersection of supply chain management with public policy, economic policy and/or regulation or publish supply chain management research that has implications for public policy, economic policy and/or regulation.

In addition to publishing in top-tier business journals, the candidate will also be expected to teach undergraduate and graduate courses, mentor Ph.D. students, fulfill University, College and Departmental service requirements consistent with the rank and have a role in Supply Chain Management Research Center (SCMRC) activities.

Required Qualifications: Candidates must have:

- A Ph.D. in supply chain management, logistics, operations management, behavioral economics, transportation economics, management or a related field by the time the candidate begins the position.
- Demonstrated the capability to publish articles in top-tier business journals.
- Demonstrated record of high-quality teaching.

Preferred Qualifications: The ideal candidate would have:

- Established research record at the intersection of supply chain management with public policy, economic policy and/or government regulation
- Demonstrated ability to teach and mentor doctoral students
- 3 or more years of corporate work experience
- Record of high-quality undergraduate and graduate teaching
- Experience teaching courses with a high degree of student-industry interaction and in face-to-face, hybrid/blended, and online formats.
- Experience teaching courses related to supply chain management, such as purchasing/procurement, logistics, or operations.
- Ability to teach in an executive MBA program.

The University of Arkansas is a land grant, nationally---competitive, student---centered, research university serving Arkansas and the world. The University has approximately 27,000 students, of which roughly 6,000 are in the Walton College. The SCM department has educational programming at all levels, including Executive Education and a Ph.D. program with an emphasis in supply chain management, and is highly ranked on the SCM Journal List™ of high impact empirical journals for SCM scholars.

The Walton College is a Top 30 research-oriented public business school uniquely situated in a diverse, inclusive learning community, perfectly situated to engage with top corporations and emerging entrepreneurs and technologies on the business issues of today.

Walton's affirming culture supports all students, faculty and staff and maximizes each individual's chance to learn, grow and succeed. Our faculty is recognized worldwide for its groundbreaking research and its teaching excellence, with several members designated as distinguished professors and university professors.

Through our recruitment efforts, we strive to engage underrepresented groups of faculty, staff and students in unique ways as we seek answers to push business in exciting new directions in Arkansas, the nation and the world.

Our location in Northwest Arkansas allows us to form research partnerships with leading global corporations in a variety of disciplines to address current and future issues facing worldwide business.

The city of Fayetteville is located in the northwest corner of the state. It is a city of approximately 83,000 with a regional population of approximately 500,000. The region boasts one of the highest employment growth rates and is consistently listed among the most desirable places to live in the U.S. A number of Fortune 500 companies are headquartered in Northwest Arkansas, including Walmart, Tyson Foods, and J.B. Hunt.

To be actively considered for this position, interested candidates must submit a brief cover letter and curriculum vitae (including at least three references that will be contacted at a later date) via the applicant portal: <http://jobs.uark.edu/postings/28692>.

For more information regarding this search, please contact:

Brent D. Williams, Ph.D.
Associate Dean for Executive Education and Outreach
Sam M. Walton College of Business WJWH 542
University of Arkansas
bwilliams@walton.uark.edu
(479) 575-2477

The University of Arkansas is an equal opportunity institution committed to achieving diversity in its faculty. Therefore, the university is especially interested in applications from qualified candidates who would contribute to the diversity of our academic departments. The university welcomes applications without regard to age, race/color, gender (including pregnancy), national origin, disability, religion, marital or parental status, protected veteran status, military service, genetic information, sexual orientation or gender identity. All applicant information is subject to public disclosure under the Arkansas Freedom of Information Act and persons must have proof of legal authority to work in the United States on the first day of employment.

