

Director of Center for Supply Chain Management and Instructor of Practice

Marquette University Department of Management, College of Business Administration

The Management department at Marquette University's College of Business invites applications for the Director of Center for Supply Chain Management (SCM) and Instructor of Practice. The position will begin with immediate effect.

Applicants should hold at least a master's degree in Operations Management, Supply Chain Management, or related disciplines and have 8+ years of relevant operations and supply chain management experience. Candidates with a Ph.D. are preferred.

The Director and Instructor of practice will collaborate with a dedicated team of faculty and staff to deliver on two primary responsibilities:

- a. External engagement and outreach to support the growth and transformation of Marquette University's Center for SCM. This responsibility will include, among others, raising funds for the center; collaborating with, engaging, and managing the center's advisory board; developing strategies to expand the center's reach and partnerships; collaborating with internal and external stakeholders to deliver on the college's vision around innovation; and supporting college and university career centers for successful career placement. Fundraising is crucial to this role as numerous student activities such as Women in Supply Chain, Applied Learning projects, and Coaches Corner are supported through center funds.
- b. Teaching and instruction to support the college's curricular offerings in the highly applied and experiential undergraduate Operations and Supply Chain Management (OSCM) major (<https://www.marquette.edu/business/undergraduate/majors/operations-supply-chain.php>) and online MS in SCM (<https://www.marquette.edu/business/graduate/master-supply-chain.php>). As such, individuals with demonstrated ability to effectively deliver a variety of pedagogical approaches will be preferred. Additionally, as an Instructor of Practice, an ideal candidate will provide student advising and mentoring, promote an environment of ethics-based instruction in keeping with Marquette University's Jesuit, catholic ideals, and enhance teaching opportunities for the OSCM programs through the Center's engagements.

The Center for SCM (<https://www.marquette.edu/business/supply-chain/>) is not only a place of academic excellence, it also is a driver for value-added engagement between OSCM faculty, students, and the industry. With its recent revisioning, the center is poised to take a leadership role in the Midwest to deliver knowledge and talent in digital transformation of supply chains.

The Center is a crucial partner to Marquette University's nationally ranked OSCM program (#16 by Gartner and #17 by US News and World Report). Located in Milwaukee, a vibrant and diverse manufacturing and business services area, the center ensures that students benefit from our deep industry relationships through class projects, internships, and placement opportunities. The Management department, which houses the center, offers four undergraduate majors (Information Systems, Operations and Supply Chain Management, Human Resources, and Entrepreneurship) and two master's degrees – MS in SCM and the Master in Management (<https://www.marquette.edu/business/graduate/master-management.php>).

Marquette University's College of Business is AACSB-accredited. Milwaukee and the surrounding region are home to 10 Fortune 500 companies, many of which have strong partnerships with the university. Marquette University is a Jesuit institution proud of its liberal arts base. Milwaukee is a "great place on a great lake" with Summerfest, major sports teams, its own symphony, opera, ballet, and repertory companies. It is 90 miles from Chicago, Madison, and Green Bay.

Applications should be submitted at <https://employment.marquette.edu/postings/12778>. The search committee will begin evaluating applications starting January 27th, 2020. Applications will be evaluated on a rolling basis until the position is filled. Queries can be directed to the department chair, Dr. Monica Adya at monica.adya@marquette.edu or (414) 288-7526.
