

The Program in Writing and Humanistic Studies

invites you to

Thesis Presentations by the Class of 2005 Graduate Program in Science Writing

Friday, May 13, 2005
MIT Faculty Club, E52-6th floor

Morning session:

9:30 – 10:00

Welcome, coffee and pastries

10:00 – 11:45

Presentations by

Kevin Bullis

“When Machines Touch Back: Simulating -- and Stimulating -- the Most Intimate of Senses”

Jennifer Boyce

“Scroop, Luster, and Hand: the Science and Sensuality of Silk”

Emily Kagan

“Cancer and the Clock”

Afternoon session:

1:45 - 3:30

Presentations by

Siri Lefren Steiner

“The Natural History of a Lost Sense”

Maureen McDonough

“Barren Promise: The Hope and Heartache in Treating Infertility”

Monica Bobra

“The Endless Mantra: Innovation at the Keck Observatory”

You are welcome to attend any or all of the presentations.
Refreshments will be served.