

Program in Science, Technology, and Society
Massachusetts Institute of Technology

FACULTY SEARCH

MIT's Program in Science, Technology, and Society invites applications for a tenured or tenure-track faculty position in the history of science and technology in the modern period at the level of assistant or associate professor. The area of study is open. The start date is open, and the promotion schedule is flexible. Graduate and undergraduate teaching and advising are expected. Interest in establishing scholarly connections at MIT beyond the STS Program is desirable. Candidates must hold a Ph.D. or equivalent and must be able to demonstrate excellence in research and teaching.

MIT is an Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action employer and strongly encourages the applications of women and members of minority groups. Candidates should submit a letter of application, describing their research and teaching; a curriculum vitae; three letters of recommendation, sent directly to the Program; a sample of research writing; and a sample curriculum or other evidence of teaching experience. These materials should be sent to Sarah Fowler, Assistant to the Director, Program in Science, Technology, and Society, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, E51-185, 77 Massachusetts Avenue, Cambridge, MA 02139-4307 (please do not send electronic applications.) Applications will be reviewed beginning December 1, 2007; the process will continue until the position is filled.

