

presents

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE AND WARFARE

LUCY SUCHMAN, LANCASTER UNIVERSITY, UK
PROFESSOR OF ANTHROPOLOGY OF SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY

Discussing the growing body of scholarship on the technopolitical logics that underpin an increasingly violent landscape of institutions, infrastructures and actions, promising protection to some but arguably contributing to our collective insecurity.

Moderated by:

SHERRY TURKLE, MIT
Abby Rockefeller Mauzé Professor of the Social Studies of Science and Technology

Commentary by:

STEFAN HELMREICH, MIT
Anthropology Department Program Head and Elting E. Morison Professor of Anthropology

Thursday, November 7, 2019

5:00PM - 7:00PM

56-114

For More information, please visit: <https://cmsw.mit.edu/event/lucy-suchman-artificial-intelligence-modern-warfare/>

This event is part of the MIT Comparative Media Studies | Writing Colloquia Series in sponsorship with the Anthropology Department, History Faculty, and STS Program.