- The first night will focus on Saint Thomas Aquinas’ insight that “grace builds on nature.” It will focus on living one’s own life, and not the life others want of you. This lecture will be offered by Fr. Michael Medas, MSW, MIT Catholic Chaplain.
- The second night Brother Matthew Pinson, SJ, will offer a presentation on Ignatian spirituality, how that spirituality makes sense/integrates into daily life, and the Ignatian method of prayer. Br Pinson holds a Ph.D. in Physics (2014) from MIT.
- The third night will focus on Benedictine spirituality (Ora et Labora), how that spirituality can integrate into the daily life of an academic (student/researcher/faculty member), and an explanation of lectio divina.

Save the dates and time. If you want to live a deeply purpose-filled life, do not miss these lectures.
